KosherTorah on Respect

by Ariel B. Tzadok

*One who shows no respect to others
reveals that one has no respect for oneself.
Arrogance is a two-sided poison.
It kills both the abuser, and the abused.*

*You are so convinced that you are right,
and that the other guy is wrong.
The other guy is equally convinced as you are.
Of course, the other guy is always wrong,
and you are always right!
This is arrogance!
And arrogance is a two-sided poison.
Your arrogance kills both you and the other guy.
But your arrogance is blended with hate.*

*You say that it is worth the sacrifice
to die yourself,
and long as you can drag down to hell
the other guy along side of you.
What does this say about you?*

*Live and let live is the law of life.
Respect everyone,
even those with whom we strongly disagree,
and even those whom we may despise.
Respect for everyone is a statement about you.
Disrespect towards another is also a statement about you.*

*When you don't give a damn,
and are willing to be dragged down into hell
as long as you can drag down the other guy,
what does this say about you?
You don't give a damn?
Yes, I know you don't.
This is what happens to one
who has no self-respect,
such a one will not have respect for anyone else either.*

*What goes around does come around.
Karma is a true law.
You cannot escape the law.
If you send out negativity, and darkness,
then negativity and darkness shall you receive
as your just rewards.
Be arrogant and be hateful,
and you will experience both arrogance, and hatred
directed towards you.
And you don't give a damn,
as long as you can drag the other guy down to hell
alongside yourself.*

*If this describes you,
then you are dangerous!*

*If this describes someone you know
then that person is dangerous.
Stay away from dangerous people.
If you are dangerous,
then with all due respect,
I pray that others will stay away from you.*

*Chose life!
Respect one another!*
