

Rise of the New Nazism

Nazism is not dead! It is back, with a vengeance! It is on the rise. Only this time, this new Nazism has little to do with either Adolph Hitler or Germany.

This time, the new Nazism is not a socialist political order related to any one country or race. Rather it is a psychological attitude of institutionalized inhumanity and personal depravity that transcends both race and borders.

In order for us to understand what makes Nazism tick, we must understand that Nazism is first and foremost a internal, psychological state of mind, long before it ever manifests in any social or political arena. Nazism is nothing new, and it did not start in Germany with Hitler. Nazism is just a modern name for an ancient spirit of evil that has plagued humanity since its early beginnings. What we call Nazism is the spirit of evil that hates humanity and seeks to destroy it, by corrupting it, and forcing it into a spiral of self destruction.

In the early twentieth century, Germany was a pioneer in social/political liberalism, and in the forefront of technological and scientific discovery. The ancient, evil spirit disguised itself under the guise of a political ideal called national socialism. This evil spirit, now called Nazism, chose to possess Germany because of the dormant hatred that already lied deep in the hearts of the masses of the peoples. It did not take much to strip Germanic society of its superficial facades of social civility, and reveal its ancient, suppressed, ugly underbelly of hate. The dormant hatreds and prejudices were then craftily exploited and sensationalized. It did not take long for that which lied dormant to awaken with a ferocious appetite.

Like an ember, the dormant hate was blown upon by the spirit of an even greater hate, until the lying embers exploded into roaring flames. It was these same flames that burned down such a great part of the world. Nazism arose in Germany and possessed an entire nation, compelling it to unleash doom and disaster upon humanity. It was this evil spirit that unleashed WWII upon the world, and brought in its wake the death of 60 million human beings.

This ancient force of evil and destruction is not the only ancient force that intervenes in the course of human events. In opposition to this alien spirit of raw hate, there arose another spirit, one which represented the spirit of a greater humanity, the spirit of freedom and liberty. The two spirits fought a vicious war, one spirit seeking to destroy man, the other seeking to preserve him. In the end, this spirit of liberty, embraced by the United States and the Biblical values it proclaimed, won the battle. Yet, although the battle of WWII was won, the great war was still not over. Defeated, evil only retreated into Hell, there to regroup, and plot and plan for the next, coming final battle of this ancient war.

Since its last defeat, the spirit of evil has hidden itself again in the shadows, operating as it always has, to sow corruption, discontent, hatred and violence. Since the end of WWII, this evil spirit has unleashed all its wrath on everything that defeated it. Anything that embraced the spirit of liberty and the message of the Bible was ruthlessly attacked. Yet, such preliminary attacks would have to be subtle, and thus not military in nature. Rather, the spirit of evil attacked the spirit of liberty within the realm of spirit, within the realm of the thoughts and ideas of humanity. Evil sought to corrupt the spirit of liberty and to turn it inside-out.

Evil knows very well how to corrupt a socially liberal society. What worked so well in Germany would work equally well in any so-called liberally-minded, open society. The society that is open to question Biblical foundations and the fundamental concepts of liberty could easily be corrupted to twist and turn those concepts into being expressions of their very opposites.

To corrupt Biblical foundations and the fundamental concepts of liberty, all evil has to do is to seduce people into ever-so-subtly tolerating an ever-growing disenchantment with Biblical foundations. Evil knows full well that it would not take long for people so corrupted to eventually shed the facade of Biblical beliefs as easily as they shed their embrace of Biblical righteousness and their expressions of personal liberties. Power, lust and greed are the trinity of Hell that can corrupt almost any soul. Only those who stand firm on the universal foundations of dignified human behavior stand a chance to overcome such temptations.

When power, lust and greed dominate in the thoughts and minds of people, they naturally seek to compromise the higher moral values that they now embrace in name only. This is evil's nefarious plan. This is how corruption grows in a society, like a virus that spreads throughout a single body. Once the mind and heart is corrupted it does not take much for people's behaviors to change. The glowing embers of corruption explode into another raging fire of ruthlessness, aimed directly at that from which it originally rebelled, the Biblical foundations of morality and the fundamental concepts of liberty.

Today, as in the past, there is an unseen, nefarious hand that is guiding general society. Individual human beings are becoming more and more accustomed to act with an institutionalized, inhumanity towards one another. Incorporated, institutionalized depravity and inhumanity has become the norm. And when asked about an individual's behavior, the response is usually that one is only following orders! "Just following orders" has been the excuse used to justify the worst crimes against humanity. We have heard this same attempted justification before, in the last century, when the words were spoken in German, at the gates of the concentration camps and death mills.

Like then, today this behavior is becoming the norm. Thus it is now widely tolerated, and even expected. The morals that we once embraced have been overturned. Our inherent, inalienable rights of personal liberty, have been gutted, reinterpreted in meaningless ways, and have essentially ceased to exist. It will only be a matter of time before a global new world order will finally impose a harsh inhumane depravity upon us all, backed up and supported by the masses who see nothing wrong, and everything right, with acting inhumanely, and with depravity, towards all those who do not embrace and support their new world order.

This new Nazism is a growing global new world order. It begins in the human mind, blossoms into human action and will finally bloom into a one-world culture, government, and society where the ruling elite will rule with cruelty and inhumanity, and this will be regarded as normal and proper. Woe to those who stand against this new world order and the many inhumane (demonic) minions that they have at their disposal to carry out their new nefarious agendas.

The next battle is well under way. The spirit of evil has acted with the greatest of subtlety to secure its coming victory. What was once right is now wrong. What was once wrong is now right. Common sense is no more. Personal intelligence and wisdom have been compromised. Liberty is quickly becoming a thing of the past. Biblical values and morals are not only rejected, they are denounced, along with those who embrace them.

There is a monster on the loose, and we just sit back and watch our televisions. We are far more interested in our latest program that we are with the reality of the world around us. This next battle will be the biggest one yet, and only God knows who has the wherewithal to survive. The new Nazism is alive and thriving. Today, many are becoming the new Nazis, totally oblivious to what is happening to them.

The next, final battle is drawing near. Sit back and ignore it, and your fate is already set. Stand up and take notice, and you might stand a chance to change things now, before it is too late. May God grant us all freedom from distractions, and the commitment to our values, to fight the good fight, as it will shortly dawn upon us.
