It's never too late to begin again. Yet, the beginning is the most delicate of times. When one proceeds carefully and cautiously in the beginning, then one can make sure that every step taken is the right one, thought out with wisdom and enacted with intelligence and understanding. Nothing more than this enables human beings to imitate God.

All life proceeds one step after another. Therefore, the next step we take is the first one into our future and towards our destiny. If, for whatever reasons, we are on the wrong track, the next step we take can either reinforce that which is wrong, or be the beginning of that which is right.

Life is a long road and only God knows where we will end up, where the road through life will guide us. We cannot see the end of our roads. These are things hidden from the eyes of men. Yet, although we may not be able to see the end, we can indeed see our next step. And that very next step, that each of us is about to take, can decide for us our entire future.

Choice is something we all have. We chose to either chose or not to chose. Not to chose is itself a choice. Whether or not is it the right one, only time can tell. Yet, if one knows within one's heart the right choice and nevertheless refuses to enact it, then the resulting wrong course is one's own doing. One can only get back on to life's proper course when one decides to do so and acts upon one's decision. In this world, good intentions and lofty words are nothing. In this world, actions talk, whereas good intentions and lofty words are mute and ineffective.

That which is delicate must be treated with the greatest of care. The delicate can be easily broken. Therefore, beginnings must be handled with the greatest of caution. While one must take definitive moves, still, the moves should be cautious, deliberate, careful and well thought out. Life moves at its own pace. Fast and slow are relative terms, whose definitions are unique to each individual. What for one is fast is slow to another and what is slow to one is fast for another. No two people move at the same pace. No two people march to the same beat or march to the same drummer. Each of us is unique, with a purpose and a destiny.

You are here for a reason! You have a purpose! Do not ask me to tell you what this is. This is not a knowledge entrusted to me or any other. Only you can discern and discover your life's purpose. Only you can discover and implement your life's plan. Looking to others takes you away from looking at yourself. This is not good. Looking into yourself and hearing your inner voice within, enables you to hear within the Echo which resonates from the Voice of God. This cannot be heard from any other or any outside source. It is within you, and only within you can you hear the Divine beckoning and the call of your destiny.

Like day and night, life is sometimes filled with light and sometimes filled with darkness. The wise know to see by day and rest by night. Yet, the wise also know the wisdom of the natural world. In times of danger, the wise hide and rest in the light and move clandestinely in the darkness. There is a time and a place for all things under Heaven. In hard times, it is time to be nocturnal. The wise understand this and act accordingly. It is not too late to become wise. Yet, a time is coming, soon to be here, and then it will be too late. Those who do not act now, in the allotted time, will be locked into a course that will not offer them many avenues of escape.

In the beginning, we must first create light and separate it from darkness. Only with the two in front of us can we recognize the true differences between them and then use each accordingly to fulfill our individual portion of the Divine Will. The beginning is the time of creation. Creation begins in thought, but must end in deeds. Unless we do, then we do not, we create not. When nothing is created, nothing gets done. Actions in this world are everything. We do, or do not, there is no try, thank you Master Yoda. But we do not need a make-believe character to tell us a real truth.

Real truth is all around us, all we have to do is open our hearts and then our eyes. When we close the mind and disable it from rationalizing away truth, then the truth can glow in our hearts and we can see within how to discern the light from darkness. The human mind has become infected from the forbidden fruit of the Tree of Knowledge, Good and Evil. This is a metaphor that tells us that the mind alone that seeks knowledge cannot alone discern good from evil. This is why the thinking man is also the fallen man. All of life's evils come about from people who think too much and feel and act too little.

One must embrace the Tree of Life and eat of its fruits. The true meaning and path of life is all around us to see in the natural world create by the Creator in the beginning. So when we return to the beginning, before the eating of the forbidden fruit, we can see creation as the Creator meant for us to see it. We can then live in the Garden we were placed in. The Garden is still there inside each of us. All we must do is find it again. This requires of us to let go of all that weighs us down, to unlearn what we have learned in knowledge, and to relearn all anew, in Life.

The beginning is the most delicate of time. Prior to the birth of the child, the seed must first find its way to the egg and implant itself. This is where we are now. The time to implant, to impregnate is upon us. Choose wisely how you wish to proceed. Either consummate your marriage with gusto and passion or remain celibate, dried up and without growth. Life is a long road and only God knows the way. Here, in the beginning, hear His Voice. It is saying, "Let there be light." And then there is light. See the light, know the darkness. Separate the two. Then proceed to build your world, your life, even as God destines for you to live.
