Rosh Hodesh Nisan 5768

167 forever!

Change is in the air; soon it will be on the ground. Change can be either good or bad and it can be a combination of the two. Usually the later is truer than the former. Yes, you can influence change, but only to a point. Some things are entirely in your hands and some things are entirely out of your hands. So, what is my point in sharing with you all this that you already know? Simple, I just want you to prepare yourselves for things that are coming and will soon be with us. Am I so wrong in advising you to "get ready"?

Pesah is coming in a few weeks. Torah faithful Jews around the world will make every effort to ensure that they are ready to observe a hametz free holiday. Mashiah is also coming, how soon is anyone's guess. How many Torah faithful Jews (and others) are making every effort to ensure that they are free from spiritual hametz (misdeeds) so that they will be able to welcome the coming King upon his inevitable arrival?

Redemption is a long drawn out process. Rome was not built in a day and redemption does not come to Israel any quicker. Natural laws direct the flow and course of human events as much as these laws control everything on Earth. Changes occur slowly over great stretches of time. Yet, when the moment of change comes, then everything that has been wound-up for so long suddenly unwinds in a flash, creating havoc in its way. Yet, with the unwinding and havoc of the one comes something new and better. From the fallen broken pieces a new world is built, new and better.

Something good is coming; yet before it comes something worse will occur. This is the nature of things. This is no prophecy because it is natural law, and remember; natural law and Divine law are one. Nations seldom change the world; national leaders do this more than the nations they represent. The world is often changed by simple single individuals who, in the act of the moment, can influence and change things for everyone, everywhere. It does not take a nation to change the world; it only takes a single person of courage.

Change is coming. Will you flow with it or resist against it? This has always been the age-old question. What do you think? Are you a person who can change the world, or are you just one of the masses who is changed by the world? I say you are the former. I say that you can change the world. The first one however that disagrees with me on this is usually you! If I tell you how much you can accomplish through sheer will-power, you tell me that I do not know or understand. But, I do know and I do understand. I know you have a power within you far greater than you think. What will it take for you to use it is something that only Heaven knows. Heaven directs your progress and destiny as a human being.

Do you recognize the direction that Heaven places upon your heart? Probably not! Do you care that you may be spiritually blind? Probably not. Are you willing to make the sacrifice, financial and otherwise to live up to the Divine command? Probably not! Do you simply want to be left alone to do your work and then relax all that you wish? Probably so!

The new month of Nisan is upon us. Pesah is right around the corner. Changes are already under way. Do not wonder as to what I am so mysteriously referring to. I insinuate nothing. Just remember this; we all have a spark of Mashiah within us. Unleash the Mashiah within yourself and maybe, just maybe, we might build a critical mass to enable Mashiah to be unleashed upon the world. You can do this, that is, if you're not too busy or otherwise occupied. The choice, as always is ours.

Mind you, each of us also has a spark of the Armilus (Satan incarnate) within us. Continue to ignore the inner Mashiah and the inner Armilus grows in strength. Inevitably the release of his energy will also reach critical mass and he will soon be unleashed upon the world. Indeed, he is already taking form and wrecking havoc. You can contribute to prevent this, that is, if you're not too busy or otherwise occupied.

Change is coming. Watch for the big bangs. Yet, prior to the bangs, there is always smoke. Remember this, where there is smoke there is NOT always fire. Sometimes smoke is used as a cover-up. When there is smoke, something is hiding in it. Look for it, if you care enough. Please forgive my wasting your time, if you don't.
